This great contest will be conducted by the Illustrated Daily News—New York's new pictorial daily newspaper. It will be conducted so that every girl—unmarried girl or widow—who lives anywhere in Greater New York or suburban districts will have an opportunity to compete.

We want to find the most beautiful girl. She may be a Wall Street stenographer. She may be a department store clerk. She may be a school girl. She may be a private secretary, a home girl, a business girl, a factory girl, a sales girl, a society girl. She may be a blonde, a brunette or titian-haired.

Somewhere in Greater New York this prize beauty will be found. A fortune of $10,000.00 in cash awaits her. We will pay that price for her photograph. We will pay $2,500.00 to the second prize beauty and $1,000.00 to the third prize beauty.

How Your Picture Will Look

Miss M

Lives on Crescent St., L. I. Employed at Wanamaker's.

You are merely asked to send or bring in the photograph. Any photograph will do. The judges will review them. A large number of nominees will be selected. These girls will then be photographed at our expense by one of New York's most noted photographers. From these standard photographs the prize beauties will be selected. Any one can enter this contest except stage women and artists' models. If you know of some girl whom you think beautiful, send in her photograph. Mark her name, address and occupation. No names will be published. You need not fear undue publicity.

In case two or more subjects are regarded equally beautiful, awards of the sums offered will be paid to each. Photographs submitted by contestants failing to receive prizes will be returned upon request.

We Make This Offer to Introduce the Illustrated Daily News

This extraordinary offer of $13,500.00 in cash awards is made to introduce New York's new pictorial daily newspaper—the Illustrated Daily News. The first issue will be published Thursday, June 26th.
